RETREAT IS ORDERLY ON ALL LINES

GENERAL CADORNA'S ARMY RETIRES TO NEW POSITION PENDING COMING BATTLE.

NO DISORDER REPORTED

Confidence is increased that German-Austrian Advance Will be Checked at the Proper Time.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Both official and unofficial dispatches from Italy reflect a tone of increasing confidence, although the situation is still grave. General Cadorna's withdrawal from the Tagliamento line and mountain districts in Vienna is proceeding in an orderly way. Home fronts in the Italian Alps to the Adriatic along the Tagliamento are General Cadorna's men retreating but also in the Dolomite and Carnic Alps. The river Piave appears to be the next line of Italian retreat. There are indications that the northern reaches of this river have been abandoned. General Cadorna probably is retiring on the Piave, and upon the lower Piave connecting the natural position by a line from the Brenta which flows through the Sogana valley to the Piave at a point south of Udine. It is probable that the Italian commander would retreat to the line of the Brenta along its entire length and would leave in the hands of the invaders. Basing his new defensive position on the upper Piave and the lower Piave, General Cadorna would have a line, General Cadorna's line, shorter than that of the Tagliamento. Routes and important railway centers northwest of the Piave are now dominated by British guns. Canadian troops of the important part of the Pashendale-Golubetz ridge by taking Pashendale, Golubetz and Mosonmar. The heavy losses Pashendale dominated routes and the plans surrounding the town. The Germans have fought hard to hold Pashendale and several times recently the British had been stopped in attempts to take it. The capture means much to the further progress towards the Rhine. The British have been successful in the British brings nearer invasions. The British has been fighting directly affected by the ever widening Ypres salient. A retreat however, is a menace to the submarine basis of Ostend and Zeebrugge and the city of Bruges. The base of German operations in Flanders and it is apparent that Crown Prince Rupprecht is doing his utmost to retain the position now held rather than to retire and straighten his line. The American patrol boat Alcedo, a converted yacht, has been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine in the zone. One officer and twenty enlisted men of the Alcedo are reported missing. The ship which carried a crew of ninety-two men, sank four minutes after being struck.

From Russian Front. London, Nov. 7.—Throughout the Italian retreat from the Tagliamento according to dispatches from the Italian headquarters in Northern Italy the cavalry scouts are fighting according to a plan. Enemy scouts on Monday were in the neighborhood of Mantova, five miles west of Tagliamento. All the new troops with which the Italians have come in contact during the past ten days were brought from the Russian front according to the Italian correspondence. The British hospital unit which became lost during the retreat from the Isonzo has now joined the Italian forces. Wonderful Bravery. Italian army headquarters (Yesterday, Nov. 7).—Again a brigade of grenadiers have covered a retreat with glory. Advancing Austro-German line until it was overwhelmed after the enemy had crossed the Tagliamento and pressing on beyond the Piave. The grenadiers were assigned to the task of holding up the advance in this region. No shelling from the enemy could dislodge them. They lay behind brush wood and in the face of the foe. As soon as the enemy came within range his ranks were swept with rifle fire of the grenadiers. The Austro-German line was filled up immediately by the grenadiers. As they approached the grenadiers rose to their knees and hurled their grenades but were unable to turn back such a great number of the enemy. The last surviving officer ordered a bayonet charge. Without hesitation the grenadiers rushed at the foe when last seen, the survivors using their rifles as pikes and were fighting until one by one fell. That did not occur however, until they had accomplished their task for their resistance delayed the enemy until Italian troops reached a place of safety and were reformed for action.

New Orders. General Cadorna issued an order in the zone of military operations territory to the north and east of the Piave and Alonzo rivers.

The Piave is the next river line behind the Tagliamento. Its mouth is twelve miles below that of the Tagliamento. Its course is tortuous and it has been generally assumed that General Cadorna would undertake nothing more than delaying action there, making his stand along a more favorable line, such as that of the Piave river.

German Report. Berlin, Nov. 7.—The Germans are continuing their pursuit of the Italians and have taken more prisoners; the war office announced. "In the mountains and on the Venetian plains the pursuit is being continued and some thousands of prisoners have been brought in."

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.] Washington, Nov. 7.—Full agreement for the co-operation in the Pacific of the United States and Japanese fleets has been reached in connection with the new compact between this country and Tokyo, Secretary of the Navy Daniels announced today. The secretary would not go into details of the plans, but evinced the utmost satisfaction that great results will accrue. ## Officials Believe Submarine Warfare Is More Intensive

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.] Washington, Nov. 7.—The sinking of the American patrol boat Alcedo early Monday morning with the loss of one officer and twenty enlisted men was received by the navy department with deep regret, but not with surprise. The daily reports sent to the department by Rear Admiral Sims have led officials here to believe that German submarine warfare is more intensive than ever before. Vice Admiral Sims has reported that since the presence of American troops in France in considerable numbers became known to Germany, that every effort was being made to sink troop transports and as a result, the war zone literally swarmed with under sea craft and that attacks were of much greater frequency. The protection being afforded transports and merchant ships carrying supplies to the American forces and the allies is being steadily increased with the result that submarines have not been so daring as formerly.

WORKS WITH U. S. NAVY OFFICERS TO ROUT U-BOATS

Vice Admiral Sir Montague E. Browning.

Vice Admiral Sir Montague E. Browning, commander of the British North American naval forces, is now in Washington. With American naval officers he is working out a plan for the co-ordination of the British and American fleets, the purpose being to view the statement of the U-boat menace.

Shots are frequently exchanged, but the losses on both sides have been comparatively small. In the opinion of naval officers here Germany is determined to keep down the transportation of American troops. Not only is this being done on account of the known fighting ability of the American soldier, but to keep down the morale of the German people in its full significance. The semi-official press of Germany has ridiculed the idea of the United States being able to send a respectable fighting force to the front. America's participation in the war has been minimized in every conceivable manner, and it is to keep up this game of bluff that the admiralty is bending every effort to keep our troops from landing.

This full information has been laid before the navy department by Vice Admiral Sims, with the result that with the submarine, is being added to the American over sea forces as speedily as this can be done. Sims has also reported to the department on the action of the American sea fighters and their general conduct, which has been viewed with admiration by the British and French.

Copenhagen, Nov. 7.—The seventh Austrian war loan will be of the 5 1/2 per cent and will be issued at 92 1/2 maturing in 40 years according to a Vienna dispatch to the Voelkespost Zeitung. ## ARMY OFFICIALS OF SWEDEN ACCUSED OF AIDING THE GERMANS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Nov. 7.—Swedish army officials were accused of conspiring to furnish millions of dollars' worth of wool to Germany, in the course of an action in the prize court here this week. The case concerned a shipment of 1,500 bales of wool, consigned to the Swedish army, but destined, according to the attorney general, for a German ship. The shipment was valued at $700,000, being only one of several seized en route from the Argentine republic. Intercepted documents, produced in court, showed that the wool was not intended to remain in Sweden. That the Swedish army had no intention of using the wool was indicated, it was asserted, by the fact that it never made an appearance in the court and put in no claim to the cargo. It was stated in court that the British authorities had in the past seized wool consigned to the Swedish army administration to pass, in the confidence that the official nature of the consignment rendered it possible to accept their assurances. It is this case where the wool was consigned to the army administration without its knowledge, asked the presiding judge, "or better case where some unauthorized person used" the name of the department? The attorney general replied, "The court will be able to judge of the practicability of anyone using the name of an official department without some official in authority becoming aware of the fact. The intercepted letters show that this is a part of a very big business, a deliberate scheme to pass wool into Germany at a moment when Germany is suffering from a great scarcity of that necessary commodity for war purposes."

The presiding judge, in giving his verdict, condemning the entire shipment as a lawful prize, said: "The intercepted documents show that the wool was intended for Germany. How it came about the name of a neutral government was used by the real consigner we do not know, and it is not for us to make observations in the matter. We can only express our surprise that the reports of a neutral government has been employed to get absolute contraband into Germany. We find that the destination of the goods was Leipzig, and they are condemned as contraband destined for the enemy."

NUMEROUS CALLERS BESIEGE GOVERNOR. Madison, Wis., Nov. 7.—Gov. Philipp is back at his desk in the capitol, and there is a daily string of callers who come to advise him on the question of a special session of the legislature and on the senatorial proposition. There is a sentiment here that if the legislature does not give the executive the power to make an appointment of a United States senator, the office will be allowed to remain vacant until the general election in the fall. In his statement on the proposition Governor Philipp called attention to the fact that at this time would cost the state upwards of $200,000.

There is a division among the newspapers of the state as to the policy which should be followed. Many of the large dailies have demanded a special election. There are some, however, who are taking the attitude that it would be far better to wait until the next general election. Governor Philipp's closest friends have not changed their minds about the appointment proposition and it will be argued upon the legislature with force.

It now becomes known that Governor Philipp does not intend to issue his legislative call this week. Governor Philipp so stated in an interview today and the probability is that the matter will be delayed for ten days.

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.] Washington, Nov. 7.—More than 25,000 food handlers who were under the license system inaugurated under a proclamation of the president on November 1, have failed to apply to the food administration for licenses and many find themselves in great difficulties. Food Administrator Hoover today announced that stern measures will be invoked against dealers who try to evade the license system. He issued a warning to his field agents in all states that unless those who are amenable to the provisions of the food control act file their applications at once, such concerns will be "blacklisted." State food administrators were reminded of the regulation which stipulates that "no licensee shall knowingly buy any food commodities from or sell any such commodities to or handle any such commodities for any person required to have a license who has not secured such license and complied with the provisions of this rule."

Administrators were informed that this rule will be rigidly enforced. Fully 50,000 licenses have been sent to dealers in all parts of the country accompanied by rules and regulations. The license division is also sending out inventory forms to all licensed dealers in foodstuffs. All licensees will be required to make full reports to administrators. Hoover said that complete details of the condition of their business on Nov. 1. These inventories will be used in comparisons with later reports to determine whether dealers are hoarding foodstuffs or engaging in other illegal practices.

DENOUNCE ACTIONS OF OHIO OFFICIALS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Nov. 7.—Wholesale condemnation of coal by Ohio mayors and city officials was denounced today by the food administration which is considering immediate action unless the practice is discontinued. "Investigations have reported that in some places railroad tracks were torn up to prevent whole train loads of coal from being moved."

"This municipal robbery," said a food administration statement today, "not only has disrupted shipping but has caused unnecessary hardships in other states and other Ohio towns. As an example four car loads of coal were ordered to one town which received coal badly. The day it was scheduled to arrive trucks and wagons waited vainly at the station to unload the promised coal but another town, a short distance away had stopped the train and confiscated all four cars for its own use. Much confusion was the result since the supply for the second town was already on the road."

The Petrograd military authorities yesterday broke off relations with the military committee of the soldiers' and workmen's delegates which ordered troops in the city to disobey the government. The bridges between the workmen's quarters of the city and center of the capital were disconnected.

LETTER IS INTERESTING

Says It Has Rained For A Week and Has Not Had His Clothes Off For Two Weeks.

Dr. E. A. Loomis, of Prospect Avenue, received a letter yesterday from his son, Orson Loomis, who is a member of an ambulance corps in France. He tells of life on the battle-front, describing the dangers in a most vivid manner. His letter, which was written at three o'clock in the morning in an Abri on the western front, follows:

"In an Abri in France, Oct. 12, 1917. "Dear Folks: It is 3 a. m. and I am sitting in an abri, only a short distance from the German lines. This abri is a hole in the ground, and is large and roomy, and when you take into consideration what is going on outside it seems like a regular seventh heaven.

"This post can be used only at night as the road leading to it is in sight of the Germans who are not very religious in picking out the kind of shelter to shoot at. About a week ago one car was made into kindling wood by a Boche shell, but no one was injured as the driver was in this safe little retreat, some thirty feet from the surface. Day before yesterday I had to make a trip up here in the daytime on a special call. Although the road is pitted up like the face of a mallee, I didn't linger along the way any, as I expected a few hot shots, but the Boches must have been in good humor that day because they didn't say a word.

"We are still in the most famous and most disagreeable sector in France, although we are working around the posts where both the French and Germans have each laid away about 100,000 men. It is comparatively quiet now. I wish I could picture to you the desolate, scarred territory around about us. There is almost no vegetation except weeds and grass and if this was ever inhabited it shows no sign of it now. Not a shed, a house or a structure of any kind is in sight, and the thick red clay on the hillsides and in the roads is scarred and battered as though thousands of potters had been at work there digging up the sticky stuff in any way to get at it. At one post you can look down the road and see a thing. But going further on you see three or four round doors that open into the hillside along one side of the way. Even the car is backed into a small square dug into the hill and covered over with camouflaged so the Boche aviators and men from all the 'saucers' can't see it. On clear days we can have no fire and cannot even walk around because if the Boche see any signs of life they shell the place, and as the abris are very poor the protection from shells would be about as good as nothing.

"In this God-forsaken place we have to go on duty for twenty-four hours, the monotony being broken by a trip up to the other post for blessings and then back to the hospital and return. Sometimes during the twenty-four hours only three trips are made but sometimes if the boys 'up yonder' get busy there are more.

"Tonight I have been acting as orderly. I happen to know the road as I take a car up to be on duty post and on returning to a post further back get off and take another car up while the first man goes on to the hospital, with his load. It makes it hard to take a car up to a comparatively warm, dry, safe place to take some one over the rough road in the cold and rain when shells might take a few liberties and become too familiar.

"It has rained for a week and for a week I have had wet feet. I haven't had my clothes off for nearly two weeks, as we have to put more on instead of taking off when we go to bed. There are two reasons for this; first, we put on clothes to prevent freezing to death, and second, we put on clothes to be ready to jump at an hour's notice for a call with our car or for a scramble for an abri if the Germans start to shell the place.

"We are sleeping in an old stone barn where the wind whistles through the water gets through the roof in spots, and you need never be surprised if you suddenly wake up only to feel the water trickling down your neck or in your ear. We often wake up also and listen to the shells come whistling into the road a little ways up the road, and we wonder if one of our boys happens to be going to the hospital about then.

Some one says 'The dirty devils are shelling that crossroads again; let's go to sleep!' And sleep we do. "Due to the energy of our 'souse chaps' from California we have taken possession of a little room with a fireplace in it, and although wood is supposed to be received only through government hands we get all we need without the government knowing anything about it. Can you imagine twenty-five live Americans freezing when there is wood around anywhere, even though it has to come from some old ruins?

"We call this little place the 'American Club' and if it wasn't for this we would all have been dead from pneumonia, the blues, or cracked spines. The arrival of the mail man is the big event of the day for those not on service, and he can bring more joy or gloom to an individual than any other one thing. The arrival of candy and sweets of all sorts always is followed by sweet dispositions and the amount each man could get away with would be remarkable (if he had the will to do so). It's a good thing to be able to appreciate what candy, cookies, crackers of any sort mean to us. Try to live for a while without any sugar, molasses, or any sweets in your feed and you'll appreciate sweets of all kinds.

"The other day three of us took the big white truck to get gasoline. It was dark before we started back and the road was slippery. We took another road to avoid the steep hills. It rained like hell and we got lost. After seemingly aimless wandering around we got back to our car. It was a good thing we didn't get wet as long as we were touring France. We didn't know but we'd have to start speaking German, but our usual luck was with us. His car, and his wife, had a spot on the Boche and French send up so they can see what is going on. The Boches have a wonderful shell that gives such an intense heat that it melts the road for miles around. It is shot from a gun and only goes up 100 feet or so. A little parabolic opens and the light slowly descends. Men say you can see the light of one of these shells two miles away, and I believe it.

"This is only a few of the many, many things we see and experience every day of our life here. We don't get on with a lot, but we do so cheerfully as long as we have work to do and new experience to go through. The other day I had a Madagascan parrot in my car. It was dressed in the French colonial khaki, more yellow than ours; had a helmet like the French and shoes like fiddle boxes. A little tuft of hair occupied a spot on his chin, and his wide flat nose was spread out over his black face. He could talk no civilized language, and altogether he was about as low down the scale of human beings there ought to be. In his belt he carried a knife that was a cross between a meat cleaver and an immense short sword. I pointed at this modern implement of war and he said 'Boche' and made motions as if pecking that knife down through the middle of my head clear to the belt. A grin as big as the mouth of the Amazon spread over his face, but he said nothing. I don't wonder that the Boche dread to see them come over the top. They are good troops for an attack but are absolutely worthless for holding trenches.

ALLEN DEARBORN AND CARROLL COON IN FRANCE

Word has been received in this city of the safe arrival in France of the Rainbow division, of which Allen Dearborn and Carroll Coon are a part. Dearborn and Coon are members of the 14th Field artillery, being the only Janesville boys in that company. They state that they had a pleasant voyage, are feeling fine, and are glad that they can be with the type of troops in that division. They figure that it will be a short time for the Germans from now on.

HIGH SCHOOL COMPANIES LEARN MANUAL OF ARMS

Members of the two high school military companies drilled last evening for the first time in the new building which is the property of the Sixteenth Separate Company, Wisconsin State Guards. Kenneth Parker, who has had considerable training along military lines, instructed the boys in the manual of arms. The boys were adept at learning and soon had the fundamental movements mastered. Due to the fact that they can't be with the type of troops in that division. They figure that it will be a short time for the Germans from now on.

POSTPONE CASES OF CITY LAW-BREAKERS

Absence of City Attorney Causes the Postponement of the Four City Ordinance Offenders.

Henry Newton made his second appearance in one week before Judge Fifield this morning in the municipal court on a charge of drunkenness. He told the same story this time and the judge handed him the same sentence of $15 and costs. Maxfield, who appeared before the judge the name of Jones and said that his home was in Wausau. Following the payment of his fine for the first offense, he evidently went out to get drunk again as he was arrested the following day.

Two brothers, August and Charles Tritter of Edgerton, were both in court this morning on charges of drunkenness. Both entered pleas of guilty, but they did not receive the same sentences. August was given thirty days and Charles ninety days.

Due to the absence of City Attorney Charles Lange, the cases of the men arrested for driving motorcycles on the sidewalks on South Main street, were adjourned until next Wednesday. At that time the four cases will be tried, three being for young men riding motorcycles and one for driving an automobile on the sidewalk. The young men to be tried for riding the motorcycles are: Loren Ormsby, Harold Culver, and Shirley Fisher. Ernest Bullock will be tried for driving his automobile on the sidewalk.

Three judgments have been rendered in the municipal court by Judge Maxfield. William J. Cremin, plaintiff, was granted $19.74 from W. B. Regal. Robert Reimer was rendered judgment of $85.52 against William Bolzein. In the case of Tiner Jensen vs. August Christensen, the plaintiff was given judgment of $50 in part payment for a motorcycle.

ADMINISTRATION MAY SEIZE SURPLUS COAL

Local People Who Bought An Over-supply of Coal, May Be Required to Give Up Excess. County Fuel Administrator—Jesse Earle stated this morning that, as yet, he had received no notice from the government relative to taking a census of the amount of coal stored in the different homes in the county. A report given out at Washington yesterday pointed out the fact that there is a serious shortage of coal, especially in the east, which may possibly be brought back to the local market by the action of excess amounts of coal will help materially in bringing about a settlement of the fuel crisis.

It is not thought that this is true of local people, but in the near future it is expected that Dr. H. A. Garfield, national fuel administrator, will issue orders to every county administrator to take a census of the number of tons of coal bought by each small consumer. If it is found that anyone has purchased an over-supply, the excess amount will be confiscated by authorities to aid in meeting the critical shortage in Philadelphia and New York.

New York City has been cited as an example of the alleged hoarding. Year after year, it is used up to 2,700,000 tons of anthracite, while this year it is clamoring for 13,900,000 tons. Whether this condition is true of other cities remains to be seen, but it is thought by officials that a large portion of excess amounts of coal will help materially in bringing about a settlement of the fuel crisis.

SHERIFF WHIPPLE TAKES VAGRANTS UP THE RIVER

Colton Goldsworthy of Beloit, who was put in the county jail yesterday morning on charges of vagrancy, was removed to the insane asylum yesterday afternoon. It appears that Goldsworthy was taken to Mendota two years ago for insanity. His case was pronounced incurable, so he was brought back to the local asylum. A few months ago his sons in Beloit petitioned for his release, agreeing to take care of him, but Beloit police arrested him for vagrancy last Saturday and now he will have to remain in the asylum. Goldsworthy was indignant at his arrest. He stated that he bought a Liberty bond and was then arrested as a vagrant.

Oliver Wakley, a local vagrant, who was given a ninety day sentence by Judge Maxfield, was taken to the county poor farm yesterday owing to illness.

"OVER THE TOP"

Rock county is bound to do its share toward the funds needed for carrying on the great work of the Y. M. C. A. in the army camps and even in the vicinity of the fighting front on the foreign shores. With the young men of the county, scattered among various camps, some now in France and others on their way, it is a matter of civic pride to give them the best we have. One had but to listen to Captain Stone of the national army now stationed at Camp Grant, to appreciate just what the Army "Y" means to the soldier. Read of the great work that such an establishment is doing for the boys from Rock county down at Camp MacArthur. Take a peep into the letters from the "boys somewhere in France," and see the necessity of these "Y" organizations. They are not to be won by force of arms alone, but by clean men who have displayed their patriotism by enlisting and who must come out of this strife as clean morally and physically as they were when they entered. Janesville's share is fifteen thousand dollars and Rock county, as a county, must raise thirty-seven thousand. The money contributed to this fund is of more value to the men it is to be expended upon than the actual cash placed in their hands. The value of this work can not be overestimated and there must be a ready response to the appeal for financial aid. Make your donation as liberal as possible and know that it will be well spent. The money of the men who are helping your battles for you, whether in Europe on this side or across the seas. The campaign is on. Be one of those who are going to aid the boys to go "Over the Top."

WHAT DO THEY WANT?

That German-Americans who still sympathize with Prussia will find it hard to answer the question which former Ambassador James W. Gerard asks in his Milwaukee speech. "What do these people want?" he asks. "Is it devotion to the Fatherland that they feel? Do they want to go back to Germany? If life in Germany was so agreeable to them why did they leave it? Do they want to go back to be shoved off the sidewalk by German officers or be struck in the face with a whip? These questions must have arisen in every one who has met those few Germans who still hold an allegiance to Prussia. What do they expect to gain by this double allegiance? Do they expect to make it pleasant for their children in this country, or do they want their children to go back to Germany? Do they think this country would be a better country to live in if Germany won? Do they think it would be pleasant for Germans in America because of the attitude that these few are now taking? What is it that they expect to accomplish by their present position?"

TEACH 'EM TO SHOOT.

A field artillery officer writes home from France to one of the army publications, urging the war department to give our own plenty of artillery practice. Each division of the national army, he says, should have a school of field artillery fire similar to that conducted at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. This officer argues that the fall and winter are a good time for artillery work, since ranges are then had on farm land with less interference with farm occupations and the life of the people in the neighborhood. He complains that there is far too little knowledge of artillery in the army. All this sounds like good stuff. In the days when we were far from thought of war, it was almost impossible to get congress to appropriate money for big guns and ammunition. There was plenty of money for machine postoffice in secluded hamlets. Artillery practice was regarded as about like a July Fourth celebration, a harmless but useless patriotic blow-out. It does cost money, and congress never saw how it would help its numbers get elected.

The educated army men have of course studied the proposition out of books. But must be another story. When you read that it is the duty of the artillery to fire from far in the rear over the heads of the line advancing to attack, the necessity of precise accuracy is apparent. The soldiers who go over the top keep but a few yards behind their own line. Any irregularity in the work of the guns would murder our own troops.

Artillery fire is a tremendous saver of human life. It pulverizes the enemy's trench system and greatly reduces the resistance the enemy can offer. We shall apparently have a good supply of shells along the trench line. It needs trained skill to make these shells do their work.

KEEPING A PIG.

Mr. Hoover says we are all to keep a pig. Well, well, well! How this does bring back our boyhood! How we used to keep a pig in the barnyard. Mr. Hoover said to maintain, or the famous pig at our country cousin's. Any live boy has a peculiar feeling for the pig. He doesn't have to be prohibited the privilege of digging in the dirt. Nor does he have to be sent upstairs with bread and water for putting his feet in the trough. And then those joyous days when the pig escaped his pen, and the whole neighborhood dropped their regular occupations and joined the chase. That was some sporting event. Just why they have to crease a pig at picnic racers is not clear. His soft and slippery hair is elusive enough without any external application. And then the fellow's speed. Who would dream that such a short and spindle-legged creature could distance the runners of the neighborhood? And that quirky and abbreviated tail, so many times gray, often still slipping through your fingers. Then there was the juvenile pastime of poking Master Pig with a fish pole, understood in the boy world to an excellent promoter of exercise and digestion on his part. No country home was complete for the boy then without him, and there was loneliness when he was gone. Our modern towns are too parlor-fod for keeping a pig. We are too fearful of the barnyard odors on which our forefathers grew fat. But the pig is not necessarily dirty. When cleaned up for a little show, he has his own silvery or dusky beauty. But we seek him in dirt and pour sweat over him and then blame him for being a hog. But we need his meat, and in villages and suburban districts there are many who could well follow Mr. Hoover's suggestion.

THE QUESTION OF SENATOR.

This question of a successor to the late Senator Husting, in the United States senate, and how he shall be selected, is being generally discussed around the state. The question is being discussed in one of three ways. First, through a primary election to be called by the governor, the candidate nominated to be elected to fill out the unexpired term which dates 1921.

Second, to authorize the governor through the legislature to appoint a man to serve until the question can be disposed of at the next general election, a year hence.

Third, to let the matter rest for a year with but one representative in the senate.

The primary election plan is endorsed by the officers and executive committee of the Loyalty League, who argue that it would be a test of loyalty free from any other issue.

Some three hundred newspapers in the state are members of the "Patriotic Association," committed to loyalty and support of the national administration. About a dozen of these men were entertained at a banquet in Milwaukee last Thursday, the guests of the officers of the Loyalty League, and an effort made to commit them to the primary election proposition.

Some opposition developed through fear of the primary law, which so of late results in minority rule, and a compromise was effected by agreeing to make the nomination through a mass convention composed of a multitude of men from all parts of the state.

No active work was to be done until the governor was consulted by a joint committee of the Loyalty League and Patriotic Press association, but the next day it was heralded over the country that the Press association had endorsed the plan by resolution, and the Loyalty League immediately went to work to carry out its plans.

The right of the officers and executive committee to commit the organ to a definite policy, without consultation, is not a debatable question. They had no such authority, and it would be presumptuous to claim that a dozen newspaper men had the right to commit the press of the state to a similar policy.

That is the situation in a nutshell, so far as the Loyalty League is concerned, and the men responsible for pursuing the state line of peanut politics which have long cursed the state. The most of them are reformed La Folletteites, who have transferred their hatred from the senator to Governor Philipp.

The fact that whether or not we have a United States senator to fill the vacancy for the next year, rests solely with the governor. This fact they seem to have overlooked.

It is extremely doubtful whether a mass convention could get away from the provisions of the primary law. The state might better do without a second senator for a year than to have another La Follette in the upper house of congress, and that is about what would happen with a primary election.

THE SHAME OF FAILURE. The thing that hurts with failure is not the battle lost. When you have fought for victory and bravely paid the cost, When you have given all to win and done the best you can, Defeat is not a shameful thing, the struggle is the failure who looks back upon the test. And knows defeat is his because he didn't do his best.

A man may lose the fight he's in and still retain his pride. If he can stand before the world as he has truly tried. But he who does not spend his strength in striving for success, Must reap from failure deep regret and anguish and distress, And looking back upon the field where he sinks the setting sun He finds the memory of the things he could and should have done.

We pray for victory and yet should failure some day come, And captives we must march in grief, Unto some German drum. How great the shame of us will be who have so much to give, And yet refused to stake our all that liberty might live! Too late, too late that day will be to answer freedom's call. Then bitterly we shall regret that we refused our all.

If we as failures face the world with all we had o'erthrown, If we have fought with all our might and all the strength we own, And still must bow to grim defeat we may depart in pride, Remembering the way for truth we fought and died and died. But how great the shame will be if then we must recall We might have won but failed because we wouldn't give our all.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor: In answer to a recent editorial in the Daily Gazette, and to the citizens of Janesville relative to the cause of the delay of the street paving work on South Main street and Franklin street, I am sure that the explanation of the conditions will be sufficient to show the reasons for the delay.

The question of securing labor has been the prominent feature in the delay of the work. Although the contracts were let to the companies during the month of May they have been unable to get the work done. The delay on Bluff street was completed during the latter part of the month of August, according to the plans. At this time it was possible to secure plenty of labor and in addition only one contract firm was busy in the city at that time.

At the present time the contracts for Main street and Franklin streets are in the hands of different companies and they are endeavoring to get the work completed, with the result that the demand for labor has been too great to supply both firms. The paving of the streets, however, there has been a noticeable increase in the number of men applying for work, which may be accounted for by the fact that the laborers from the farms and other places are coming to the city.

The weather has also been the cause of the delay. The men could not do their work on the incline days, and which have had many. Cities throughout the state have been handicapped to a great extent, as is shown by the work in Watertown and Beloit. In Beloit, Liberty street, which was to be paved, has been along with several other streets, was only completed a short time ago. In Watertown the work of paving one of the main streets progressed until the shortage of labor forced the business men of the city to aid in the handling of the brick to complete the work.

It was necessary to make repairs on the car tracks on both Main and Franklin streets which impaired the progress of the work. New rails were laid on Main street and new ties on Franklin street. The conditions relative to securing of steel made it impossible for the interurban company to secure the rails to be laid.

The prospects for the completion of the work on Franklin street are very bright, providing the weather conditions remain such as they are now. The laying of the asphalt will start early next week if the laying of the foundation can be completed this week.

On Main street the laying of the brick on the east side of the street will continue this week, and if the weather is good it should be completed by the end of the week. As soon as it is completed the men will begin laying the brick on the west side of the street starting at the north end of the portion which is being repaired.

The city street department is not the only one that has been handicapped by weather conditions, as the local sugar beet factory was forced to close because the farmers were unable to take their beets from the ground. —P. J. GOODMAN, Supt. of Streets.

Edgerton, Nov. 7.—The weather of the past few days has helped cure out the tobacco that is hanging in the sheds. The late crop that had failed to cure was considerably damaged by the frost of last week and in many instances will have to be hauled out of the land again for fertilizer. Several vases have claimed that tobacco will have to hang until late spring to allow it to cure while others claim that as long as the leaves are attached to the stalks they will fail to dry and unless they are stripped from the stalks and tied in large hands to dry the portion of the crop will be a total loss. The packers in many instances bought the crop in the field at prices from 15c to 20c assuming all risks of frost, hail and shed damage, all wet tobacco to be stripped of the stalks at the same price as the rest of the crop while other crops were sold in the usual manner. That there will be considerable trouble in handling the tobacco and bringing it to market in packable condition is especially true of the late tobacco. In many instances where the harvest was early the crop has cured out and the freeze of last week did no damage. Vases have been estimated that fifty per cent of the tobacco was late in being harvested and that seventy-five per cent of the late leaf has been damaged by the cold weather. This is so the loss will amount to an enormous sum.

ATHLETICS PLAY A PART IN LIFE OF CAMP MACARTHUR

(By Sergeant Beard.)
Camp MacArthur, Tex., Oct. 31.—Here it is Halloween night again. It certainly brings back the memories of those olden days back in Janesville when we were youngsters. It is just the right kind of an evening here for a night of fun, it being rather foggy and warm. The first trace of Halloween was noticed when we came out of the mess shack after supper tonight. Down the street, always and in front of the mess shack of Co. K was noticed the laundry wagon of an old negro. The horse had been unhitched and turned around and hitched up backwards, with his tail where his head should be. The driver was some amazed when he returned to his wagon, but took the joke in a good-hearted manner. The boys who leave their washings out over night had better keep close watch of them if they care to make use of their wearing apparel again.
Today was field day and this morning Co. M marched out to the field and took part in the various events. The boys took a couple of firsts and a second or two in the events. In the afternoon our football team trimmed the team from Co. B of this regiment to the tune of 13 to 0. We have the material on which we could build an excellent football team and the boys are going to arrange for other games in the near future.
Organization of an ordnance depot company at Camp MacArthur will begin at once, division headquarters announced yesterday. The following vacancies exist in the various grades of this depot company and will be filled by voluntary enlistment or by transfer from the national guard organizations in this command to the enlisted ordnance corps, national army, of men specially fitted therefor by education or experience. Five sergeants, first class, ordnance department, duties, stenographers, typists, etc. Two sergeants of ordnance, duties, typists, clerks, etc. Sixteen corporals of ordnance, duties, stenographers, typists, checkers, apprentices. Two cooks, fifteen privates, first class, ordnance department; duties, messengers, laborers, and miscellaneous. Thirty-two privates, duties, messengers, laborers, and miscellaneous.

Enlisted men specially fitted for these duties by their education and experience may submit applications for transfer to the enlisted ordnance corps, national army, to the division ordnance officer (through military channels). Application should state previous military service and occupation in civil life. The company commander will endorse thereon his estimate of each man's fitness for this work and his character and will recommend approval or disapproval. This is a good chance for the men who are fitted for this kind of work and a good many applications are expected.

In the religious working of the Army Young Men's Christian Association at Camp MacArthur there is one feature which stands out above everything else as an indication of the cleanliness of the Michigan and Wisconsin soldiers. Within the past two weeks exactly 1,348 soldiers have signed the war roll pledge of the Y. M. C. A. which is a stand for Christian work and clean living and thinking. This number is unusually large, because there are a large number of men at the camp who have not attended the meetings when talks have been given by the "Y" secretaries. In one building, that of section C, 553 men have signed the pledge and but three meetings have been held. The "Y" workers are planning a great religious campaign at the camp and the progress that has been made so far is an indication that the association workers, in co-operation with the army chaplains, are doing great work in preparing the Michigan and Wisconsin men for the moral battle in France, which is almost as great as going "over the top."

Movies for the soldiers are proving to be a great success at the Y. Buildings at Camp MacArthur if the enthusiasm displayed by the Sammies at the shows is to be taken as an indication. The "Y" buildings have been crowded every night and as a result the "Y" heads are bringing to the camp the best films that can be secured. Of course, pretty girls are shown in the pictures, and as to the popularity of this feature the soldiers alone can tell.

One evening while attending one of these shows the fire call was sounded, but after the men had started for the door someone called "Keep your places," and each soldier went back to his place, while the picture continued. This shows how well the soldier has learned the habit of obedience. If they had not been well trained in this manner a number of lives might have been lost in the rush for the door that evening. A great crowd collects at the "Y" buildings every evening and the boys certainly appreciate the pictures. Of course, some of the boys have to stand, but what do they care when they are seeing some of the latest and best pictures. Whenever I attend one of these "movies" it makes me think of the Beverly or the Apollo.

Camp MacArthur eleven will play a game against Camp Logan of Houston next Sunday afternoon at the Cotton Palace athletic field at 3 o'clock. The MacArthur team has been in training for quite a while and is now considered ready to meet its opponent. Camp Logan has a team composed mostly of Illinois men, all of the same regiment. These players have fought on the field together many times and work well together. They are coming up to Waco with the expectation of "cleaning up" on the Camp MacArthur squad. The soldiers of the local camp practice every afternoon from 4:30 until supper time and are perfecting their machine. The director yesterday. Shower baths and bleachers have been erected on the athletic field for the accommodation of the men. Tippet and Hanley are two prominent men for the Camp MacArthur squad. Both play at the position of halfback and are showing speed. Potter, a brilliant player, is coming out for fullback. Several besides these are trying for places in the backfield and the probabilities are that a close race will be completed before the backfield is completed for the coming game. For quarterback Welch of Wisconsin and Harsh and Roth of Detroit are three of the most prominent men for that position at present. For end, the team is especially fortunate in having Logan, ten second man. That he will likely star for the Boston Nationals, and a prove valuable in outstripping the opponents on wing plays for long gains is the belief. For the line, Gardner, Gorman, Wadewitz, Ragle, Hendrickson and Erickson are all good men, and it will be hard to determine which shall come out ahead where there is the most of them. George at tackle and Clarke at end are showing up well and will be used in some of the games. The material at hand is of medium weight, according to information received from Director Pearl, Maj. Kenny, Lieut. Handley, Corporal Felton and Sergt. Sheldaker are the coaches who are working out the forty-five men who are determined to make the division team. The game Sunday is expected to be a tight one, with both sides firmly determined to uphold their standard.

The following statement, issued yesterday by Division Athletic Director Pearl, Camp MacArthur, explains the organization of athletics at the reservation:
"Each company has an athletic officer who is a commissioned officer, and each company has an athletic committee which the commissioned officer is chairman of. This committee outlines the program for the athletic officers, which are submitted to the regimental athletic officers for approval. Each company is divided into squads of ten, in command of a non-commissioned officer. It is the duty of each non-commissioned officer to see that the athletic squad carries out the program assigned him by the athletic committee.

Two squads work on baseball, four squads on volleyball, two squads on indoor baseball, two squads on field and track.

"This is a program now in operation by the 10th regiment of engineers. Their program is being continued to include squads for soccer ball, boxing and wrestling. Football and basketball may be added to his squads for group games can be added. Such a program can be made to fit every company in this division.

"In the next few weeks a good working athletic organization can be built in every company in this division. When this is done there will be athletics for every man. This is the kind of machine we most take to France. When we land, our athletes will go into operation immediately. During training they will be most essential, but exceedingly more so when the boys of this division return from occupying first line trenches. As the old saying goes 'All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy,' it surely applies to the soldiers at Camp MacArthur, and we are always on the alert to get the best possible results from athletics, as we are from drill."

MYERS THEATRE.

"Stop! Look! Listen!" Musical Comedy Will Reign at the Myers.

"Stop! Look! Listen!" will be revealed in all its grand and glorious color and beauty at the Myers theatre next Sunday evening, Nov. 11. One must obey the command to stop and marvel at the magnitude of the ten crowded scenes, then his gaze will be transfixed by a look at the bewildering array of the most varied assortment of attractive costumes set off against backgrounds that are quite the latest and most beautiful things in contemporary stagecraft. So far as listening is concerned, the reward will be typical of Irving Berlin melodies with the familiar turn to them, and dialogue that follows the custom of Harry B. Smith. At the same time, the play is a big, bright, musical revue, with a wealth of loveliness in femininity, will find a superlative one in "Stop! Look! Listen!"

Baseball will continue next year all right, declare Ben Johnson, John Tener and others, but they admit that it may not be quite the same baseball that we have been having in seasons past. Whether or not the schedules are shortened the war will make a big difference and the players eligible sooner or later for the army will be needed. Baseball officials seem sure that the government will take many of the big leaguers away to war next spring and the result will be that the big league will have to take many players from the minors to all the best kept in operation in this way it ranks. While the big leagues will certainly suffer, also the big leagues appears that minor leagues are pretty well off. The fans quite so fast an article of ball. However, baseball so far has made not a very large contribution to the war and the army and it will have to do all of its bit. Fans may be happy enough if they have any big league ball at all.

City Gentlemen:—

Janesville, Wis.
Nov., 6th., 1917.

Our Big 1c Sale, November 1, 2 and 3 was a tremendous success in every way and we thought that you would like to know that the only advertising, aside from our windows, that was used was published in The Gazette.

The marvelous response to this Gazette publicity more than satisfied us as to our investment in your space and proves again what we have long believed: That a meritorious article or proposition well advertised in your paper cannot help but produce results.

Very truly yours,
Smith Drug Co.

Can You Ask for Any More Positive Demonstration of What Gazette Advertising Will Do?

It is just as Mr. Smith says: A worthy article well advertised in this paper will return to the advertiser profitable results.

There are no ifs or ands about it—it has been proven hundreds and hundreds of times, its being proven right here in Janesville every day.

If you are not already advertising in The Gazette you are losing additional profits every day.

If you are already advertising in The Gazette it is quite possible that you are losing additional profits by not using enough space.

Our advertising department will be glad to suggest ways and means of correctly advertising at any time.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl twenty-four years old, and have been with a young man who is now twenty-four. I am very much in love with him. Recently, however, he has made some other friends and he doesn't come to see me as often as he used to.

When I first went with him a few months ago he said he loved me very much, and I am a stranger in the city. He lives and has been here for some time and got acquainted with some young men and he told me that I knew too many for the time I have been here.

When he takes me to a dance he speaks and acts with other girls and I get very jealous. Although I think he does about the same, because when I speak to a fellow he always tells me about it.

(1) Do you think he still loves me?
(2) What can I do to make him think of me as much as he used to?
(3) Do you think he is trying to get rid of me?

(4) Do you think I ought to make dates with other young men if I get the chance?

(5) You must remember that men often use many idle words when they are with girls. When he said that he loved you he may not have meant it at all. It all depends on how he tells it, and you ought to be able to tell. He probably likes you, but doesn't want you to take his attention too seriously. Yes, I think he probably cares as much for you now as he always has.

(6) That depends on how serious the affair is. If you feel that you love him enough to marry him and that he would be a good husband to you, you must act accordingly. When he talks to other girls don't show that it bothers you at all, but turn your attention to other men. If you are both jealous of each other, no good can come of your showing it. He probably cares for you in his own way and still he may not be bold about showing it. He may be just trying you out to see how you will take his attitude.

(3) No, I don't think he is. If he had that intention he could easily enough show it so that there would be no doubt in your mind. He certainly wouldn't take you to dances and places if he wished to get rid of you.

(4) Since you are not engaged to him, yes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I would like to know a few things that might light up one's life and make things a little more easy.

(1) Would one who having only a graded school education, after having worked ten or twelve years at home, be able to obtain anything or much knowledge from a correspondence course?

(2) Would you name a few authors or some instructive books and the name of some good magazines?

(3) Can anyone obtain private advice from the problem editor?

(4) Yes, certainly. (5) Charles Dickens, George Eliot, William Shakespeare—there are many standard classics. Go to the library and ask the librarian for the best of the world's best books. She will recommend to you good books to read after you talk with her a little while and tell her what sort of reading you prefer.

There are many very good magazines nowadays. Among them are the Century, Harper's Magazine, Scribner's, and among the weeklies, Post, Every Week, Colliers, etc., etc.

(3) If you have a question on which you want advice, but do not want your letter published, send me your letter enclosed with your address written on it.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

(Miss Hoyt writes answer in this paper all questions on matters of etiquette addressed to her in care of this paper. If a personal answer is desired enclose a two-cent stamp.)

Copy to go with Mat No. 5. It is permissible to take the last helping of any dish offered. If you refuse it you seem to fear that the hostess has not provided enough.

MRS. K.: You certainly should send notes of thanks to all the people who remembered you with gifts of flowers during your illness. Your note might take some such form as this: "My Dear Mrs. Brown: Please accept my thanks for the lovely flowers you sent me during my illness. They were very beautiful and fragrant and made my room quite lovely. I am sure they hastened my recovery. To those who wrote you notes expressing sympathy and good wishes, I am sure you should send short notes also, thanking them for their good wishes."

MIRIAM: The young man who dropped the note in your lap in the street car was very impertinent to say the least, and you had better ignore his existence hereafter. If, as he says, he admires you, and wishes to become acquainted with you, he should get someone who knows you both, and who can bear witness to his good character, to introduce him.

Household Hints

MENU HINT FOR WHEATLESS DAY.

Stewed Peas with Lemon Slices. Uncooked Cereal. Raised Graham Rolls. Coffee.

Onion and Potato Soup. Rye Bread Croutons. Cabbage Salad.

Reheated Rolls. Peach Marmalade. Panned Oysters on Toast.

Cold Sliced Beef. Lyonnaise Potatoes. Brussels Sprouts. Apple Brown Betty.

GRAPE PUNCH. To make grape punch, pour one cup of boiling water on a half pint of grape jelly, and stir until it is dissolved. Then add one quart of iced water and the juice of two lemons and one lemon cut into fancy shapes. Sweeten to taste.

FOR MARRED FURNITURE. When furniture has become marred touch up the spots with iodine to bring back the color, then rub with furniture polish.

RUSTLESS GAS STOVES. To keep a gas stove from rusting after blacking the stove, apply a little floor wax with a soft cloth; polish it. This will not only keep it free of rust but will give it a brilliant polish.

KEEP IRONS HOT. If you would retain the heat in your flatirons while ironing, use a brick for an iron stand, rather than an iron work iron stand. Use a white brick if it is convenient.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. Hint For Motorists. When driving through a storm, rub surface of windshield with kerosene and the raindrops will roll off the glass instead of staying on and obstructing the view.

To Test Eggs—Place them in a deep pan of water. If eggs are strictly fresh they will sink; if they are bad they will float. If they sink, dip them in the bottom of the pan or perhaps stand on end.

IMPROVING HAMBURGER. Before frying hamburger steak add some leftover boiled potato ground with the meat. Fry in the usual manner. This will make the meat light and give it a delicious flavor.

STEAMED BREAD. Mix one-half cup flour, one-half cup rye flour, one cup graham flour, one cup corn meal, two cups water, one cup boiling water, one teaspoon baking soda, one well-beaten egg, one-half teaspoon salt. Steam steadily for four hours in greased mold, then turn out and bake twenty minutes, or till dry enough to cut easily.

SALMON MOLD. Salmon mold is a delicious dish which requires one can salmon, one cup of soft bread crumbs, two tablespoons of melted butter, two eggs beaten, juice of one-half lemon, pepper and salt. Mix the salmon and the other ingredients and cook five minutes. Pack in a mold lined with slices of hard-boiled egg. Chill and serve on a bed of lettuce with salad dressing.

OLDER CUP. Cut an orange into three slices and put in pitcher with two tablespoonsful granulated sugar.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D. LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

THE PREVENTION OF ARTERIO-SCLEROSIS. "Where is it possible to get an absolutely dependable work on the prevention of arterial sclerosis or hardening of the arteries? Except for articles appearing frequently which do but little good, as they simply warn us of the danger, but are not definite enough as to its prevention."

"Such a work, to be worth while, should include a list of foods and a list of exercises that would prevent such a condition."

"It is not a fact that nearly all foods contain earthy salts such as tend to cause hardening of the arteries? And it is not a fact that nearly all foods are under-nourished, eating the smallest possible quantities of such foods, in order to delay the final catastrophe? Is distilled life solvent for the substance that hardens the arteries? Just what foods are safe and not productive of arterial hardening? I trust you will print exhaustive articles on the subject, which I am sure are needed by a great many people."

Any good handbook dealing with the subject of personal health or personal hygiene covers the ground. There may be many popular misconceptions of the cause and character of the disease which such books do not specifically dismiss. Our correspondent mentions a few of them. We wonder how such ideas gain currency. The subject has been harped on day after day in this column. We have done everything possible to teach readers how to prevent hardening of the arteries. We have harped on the diet of the particular foods or the definite diet our correspondent wishes. That we can't do, because it can't be done. As for distilled water, that is a very old remedy, but it is not a natural drinking water, so far as arterio-sclerosis is concerned. And the presence of mineral salts in food is nothing whatever to do with the question of hardening of the arteries. Such ideas are promulgated by self-constituted food experts with more imagination than physiological learning.

Along in life—sixty and over—it is natural for the arteries to gradually lose their youthful elasticity and begin to become hard. When the process begins much earlier in life, it is pathological, and there is always a reason. The reason is usually the victim's mode of life. He has simply tried to live thirty years in five. It is not the kind of food you eat, nor the quality of water you drink, nor the quantity of food you eat, nor the alcohol you drink, nor the strain, nor worry, nor anxiety, that wears you out and brings premature degeneration. It is the unbridled use of stimulants, and a great deal of that reality narcotics, to fool your nerves and brain when plain common sense tries to call for REST and RECREATION.

Why should a man worry about his arteries? Friday we shall give some reasons.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Simple versus Compound Sneezes. Will you please tell me why it is that some people are able to sneeze through the nose only, whereas, in spite of all my efforts I have to sneeze through my mouth and make a great racket doing it. I am employed in an office with many girls and men, and it is very embarrassing.

ANSWER:—Perhaps you are self-conscious about it. A good sneeze is accompanied by a trifle noisy and liable to make one spit the ink or something. Congratulate yourself upon your vitality and good health, and sympathize with the poor mollycoddies who have learned to throttle and smother a sneeze and nurse two many coryzas into it, and get all the sympathy into it. Only muzzle it with your handkerchief. It is natural and wholesome to sneeze through the nose and mouth at the same time.

Found a Remedy For Pruritis. For two years or more I was a great sufferer from pruritis, as doctors call it. There was no visible eruption, nothing but a kind of dryness, but it was like a kind of dermatitis in New York and Chicago and employed all kinds of internal and external remedies, drugs and ointments. Finally a young doctor who lives in our neighborhood began to feed me small doses of thyroid extract twice a day. In a week my itching disappeared entirely and it has never returned, nearly a year now.

(Old Boy.) ANSWER—The thyroid gland, the skin more active and healthy aided in the oxidation of toxic irritants.

SIDE TALKS

RUTH CAMERON

Being Unsportsmanlike About Bills. I have just had my attention drawn to one matter in which men and women are equally unscrupulous.

And that is in their attitude toward any merchant who tries to have them pay back bills.

Several merchants wrote me letters. One of them told of a man who had owed a small bill of two dollars for over a year. He had repaid the bill in monthly payments of a cost of thirty-two cents and then one day when the man was in the store had called it to his attention. The man had said it and then had said "That is the last time I will ever trade in your store."

Again, a dentist once told me that a certain young man was making little money at the time the bill was contracted so the dentist was patient, but since then he has had money left over and has a machine and many other luxuries. Yet he entirely ignores the dentist's bill.

"Why don't you send a bill collector?" I asked.

"Could I have several of his relatives for my patients and they would all leave me?"

There are two examples of what I call a thoroughly unjust attitude toward business dealings on the part of men and women alike.

To retaliate against a perfectly just merchant, such as a dentist, asking for the two dollars or the dentist's sending a bill collector, by withdrawing one's trade, is downright mean and unfair.

Honor Ought To Keep You From Using Your Power. To be sure, you have the power but honor ought to withhold you from using it.

A good sportsman would say, "I got what I richly deserved."

Suppose the people who paid your salary paid you that way, where would you be? And these people have bills to pay just as you have.

Letting bills pile up like that unless you are hard pushed (and even then you could surely plan to pay a certain proportion on them week by week) or unless there is some question of adjustment that you are not satisfied with, is an unsportsmanlike thing to do and kicking when your creditors kick is still more so.

Many people are rusty. Their harsh, ungainly manners eat out whatever is good in their own character.

HYPHEN-SLACKER.

Dimmer Hyphen-Slacker, almost stopped trembling as a thought jarred his feeble brain with its suddenness.

"That's the way," he told himself. "They won't take men with defective teeth, so before the examination I'll just go and have all my teeth drawn, and then I won't be any use in the army."

And he hurried to Dr. Yankem, who would rather have pulled a tooth than fallen heir to a fortune.

"I suffer dull pains in my calves, and I think they come from my teeth," he explained. "I want them all drawn out."

The next day Hyphen-Slacker reported for physical examination. The examining physician took one look at him.

"Reflected on account of flat feet," he snapped out.

Hyphen-Slacker started.

"Never mind opening your mouth to argue—there's no use examining you further. Next," called the physician.

Hyphen-Slacker went home and kicked himself from the garret to the cellar.

Hair Will Start To Grow Fast

"You Will See a Difference in Length of Your Hair in a Few Days," Says Valeska Suratt, the Movie Queen.

BY VALESKA SURATT.

IN ALL my experience I have never experienced anything so remarkable as the whole category of beauty art as the results achieved by a certain hair formula, which I have given to many of my friends, have been reported most startling. It forces hair to grow at once, and the difference is very quickly noted. I want you to try it. This makes over a hint of this wonderful hair grower. Ask your druggist for a one-ounce package of Valeska's hair grower, and mix this with one pint of mayonnaise, and on the most delicate skin. It is the only safe way, and is exceedingly simple and quick.

MISS G. O.—You can find nothing better for a head-wash and shampoo than a mixture of one teaspoonful of egg in half a cup of water. It cleanses hair and scalp better than anything else known. You can get enough egg for twenty-five cents to get a good many weeks.

MISS M. O. N.—A truly wonderful way, and the easiest and quickest way to remove superfluous hairs is to dissolve them. This is done by moistening the hairs with a little water, and then rubbing on a little of the Valeska's hair grower. It is the only safe way, and is exceedingly simple and quick.

MRS. O. G. H.—To get rid of that disagreeable chubbiness in nearly all face powders, I have had my own face powder made specially. It is now sold as "Valeska's Skin Face Powder" at drug stores for fifty cents a tin. I defy you to find a powder more exquisite in fineness.

WITTY—Hereafter, if your druggist hasn't the apt for wrinkles and the beta-quinol for the hair, just send fifty cents, which is cheap for the either of them. Send to Valeska Suratt, Thompson Building, Chicago, Ill., and my secretary will supply you by mail at once.

AGING—I can guarantee you will get rid of those wrinkles, crows' feet and forehead wrinkles in only a few days, you can be sure of that. Make your own cream at home as follows: It produces the most remarkable results you can imagine. Mix two ounces of egg and two tablespoonsful of glycerine with half a pint of water. Use the cream lavishly and you'll get wonderful results. I have known startling effects to be obtained with this cream in a very short time. The skin turns fresh, plump and youthful and a difference of many years in appearance is perceived. You can get the cream at any drug store or by mail. To obtain this result you must use the cream faithfully and every day, applying it thickly.

ALL OVER—It is the easiest thing you can imagine to get rid of blackheads. They can be removed in a few minutes—and it is sure of that. by RANDALL PARRISH

A Romance of Early Days in the Middle West

Author of "Keith or the Border," "My Lady of Doubt," "The Maid of the Forest," etc.

Copyright, 1917, by Randall Parrish

I cannot describe my feelings—joy, sorrow, memory of the past over-whelming me. My eyes were wet with tears, and I could find no words. D'Artigny seemed to understand, yet he made no effort to speak, merely holding me close with his strong arm. So in silence, our minds upon the past and the future, we followed the savages through the black night along the dim trail. For the time I forgot where I was, my weird, ghastly surroundings, the purpose of our stealthy advance, and remembered only my father, and the scenes of childhood. He must have comprehended, for he made no attempt to interrupt my reverie, and his silence drew me closer—the steady pressure of his arm brought me peace.

Suddenly before us loomed the shadow of the great rock, which rose a mighty barrier across the trail, its crest outlined against the sky. The Indians had halted here, and we pressed forward through them, until we came to where the chief and La Forest waited.

There was a growing tinge of light in the eastern sky, enabling us to perceive each other's faces. All was tense, expectant, the Indians scarcely venturing to breathe, the two white men conversing in whispers. Sequitah stood motionless as a statue, his lips tightly closed.

"Your scouts ventured no farther?" questioned D'Artigny.

"No," was not safe; one man scaled the rock, and reports the Indians just beyond."

"They hide in covert where I suspected them; but I would see with my own eyes. There is a cave here, as I remember, to give foothold. Ay, here it is, an easy passage enough. Come, La Forest, a glance ahead will make clear my plans."

The two clambered up noiselessly, and outstretched themselves on the flat surface above. The dawn brightened, almost imperceptibly, so I could distinguish the savage forms on either side, some standing, some squatting on the grass, all motionless but alert, their weapons gleaming, their cruel eyes glittering from excitement. La Forest descended cautiously and turned toward me.

"Madame, D'Artigny would have you join him."

Surprised at the request I rested my foot in his hand, and crept forward along the smooth surface until I lay beside Rene. He glanced aside into my face.

"Do not lift your head," he whispered, "peer through this cleft in the stone."

Before us was a narrow opening, devoid of vegetation, a sterile patch of stone and sand, and beyond this a fringe of trees, matted with underbrush below so as to make good screen, but sufficiently thinned out above, so that, from our elevation, we could look through the interlaced branches across the cleared space where the timber had been chopped away to the palisades of the fort. The first space was filled with warriors, crouching behind the cover of underbrush. Most of these were lying down, or upon their knees, watchfully peering through toward the fort gates, but a few were standing, or moving cautiously about bearing word of command.

"Monsieur," I whispered, timidly, "you can never attack; there are too many."

"They appear more numerous than they are," he answered confidently, "but it will be a stiff fight. Not all Tuscaroras either; there are Eries loyal to the right, and a few renegade Mohawks with them. Look by the foot of that big tree, the fellow in var-bonet and deerskin shirt—what make you of him?"

"A white man in spite of his paint."

"Was my guess also. I thought it likely they had a renegade with them, for this is not Indian strategy. La Forest was of the same opinion, although 'twas too dark when he was here for us to make sure."

"For what are they waiting and watching?"

"The gates to open, no doubt. If they suspect nothing within, they will send out a party soon to reconnoiter the trail, and reach the river before water. It is the custom, and, no doubt, these devils know, and will wait their chance. They urge the laggards now."

We lay and watched them, his hand clasping mine. Those warriors who had been lying prone rose to their knees, and, weapons in hand, crouched for a spring; the chiefs scattered, careful to keep concealed behind cover. Not a sound reached us, every movement noiseless, the orders conveyed by gesture of the hand. D'Artigny pressed my fingers.

"Action will come soon," he continued, his lips at my ear, "and I must be ready below to take the lead. There can serve us best here. Adieu; there is no safer spot if you lie low. You have a bit of cloth—a handkerchief?"

"Yes, monsieur."

"Then watch the fort gates, and if you see them open drop the cloth over the edge of the rock there in signal. I will wait just below, but from where we are we can see nothing. You understand?"

"Surely, monsieur; I am to remain here and watch; then signal you when the fort gates open."

"Ay, that is it; or if those savages advance into the open—they may not wait."

"Yes, monsieur."

His lips touched mine, and I heard him whisper a word of endearment.

"You are a brave girl."

"No, monsieur; I am frightened, terribly frightened, but—but I love you, and am a Frenchwoman."

He crept back silently, and I was left alone on the great rock, gazing out anxiously into the gray morning.

CHAPTER XXV.

The Charge of the Illini.

It seemed a long time, yet it could scarcely have exceeded a few moments, for the light of early dawn was still dim and spectral, making those savage figures below appear strange and inhuman, while, through the tree barrier, the more distant stockade was little more than a vague shadow. I could barely distinguish the sharp-pointed logs, and if any guard passed, his movements were indistinguishable.

Had I not known where they were, even the position of the gates would have been a mystery. Yet I lay there, my eyes peering through the cleft in the rock, every nerve in my body throbbing. All had been entrusted to me; it was to be my signal which would send D'Artigny, La Forest, and their Indian allies forward. I must not fail them; I must do my part. Whatever the cost—even though it be his life—nothing could absolve me from this duty.

The Iroquois were massing toward the center, directly in front of the closed gates. The change in formation was made with all the stealthiness of Indian cunning, the warriors creeping silently behind the concealing bushes, and taking up their new positions according to motions of their chiefs. Those having rifles loaded their weapons, while others drew knives and tomahawks from their belts, and held them glittering in the gray light. The white leader remained beside the big tree, paying no apparent heed to anything excepting the stockade in front. The daylight brightened, but mist clung over the valley, while floating wreaths of fog drifted between the great rock and the fort gates, occasionally obscuring the Iroquois in vaporous folds. There was no sound, no sight, of those hidden below waiting my word. I seemed utterly alone.

Suddenly I started, lifting myself slightly on one arm, so as to see more clearly. Ay, the gates were opening slowly at first, as though the great wooden hinges made resistance; then the two leaves parted, and I had a glimpse within. Two soldiers pushed against the heavy logs, and, as they opened wider, a dozen or more men were revealed, leaning eagerly on their rifles. Bolsondet, bearing gun in the hollow of his arm, stepped forward into the opening, and gazed carelessly about over the gray, mist-shrouded scene.

The arm of the white renegade shot into the air, and behind him the massed Iroquois arose to their feet, crouching behind their cover ready to spring. I reached over the rock edge, and dropped the handkerchief.

I must have seen what followed, yet I do not know; the incidents seem burned on my memory, yet are so confused I can place them in no order. The white renegade seemed waiting, his arm upraised. Ere it fell in signal to dispatch his wild crew to the slaughter, there was a crash of rifles all about me, the red dare leaping into the gray mist—a savage yell from a hundred throats, and a wild rush of naked bodies.

I saw warriors of the Iroquois fling up their arms and fall; I saw them shrink and shrivel, break ranks and run. Surprised, stricken, terrified by the warwhoops of the maddened Illini, realizing only that they were caught between enemies, their one and only thought was escape. Two of their chiefs were down, and the white renegade, stumbling and falling as though also hurt, dived into the underbrush.

Before they could rally, or even comprehend what had occurred, their assailants were upon them. Leaping across the open, over rock and sand, yelling like fiends, weapons gleaming in the dull light, the frenzied Illini, enflamed with revenge, maddened with hate, flung themselves straight at the naked bodies. I saw D'Artigny, stripped to his shirt, and that in rags from the bushes he had plunged through, his rifle barrel gripped, a yard in front of them all. I saw La Forest, bare headed, and Sequitah, his Indian stoicism forgotten in mad blood lust. Then they struck and were lost in as a single guard at the gate when we entered, yet we were greeted instantly by his voice.

"Tis well you return, M. de Tonty," he said loudly. "I was about to call those soldiers yonder, and close the gates. 'Tis hardly safe to have them left thus with all these strange Indians about."

"They are Illini, monsieur—our allies."

"Fah! an Indian is an Indian to my mind; bid M. de la Durantaye come hither. He stared at D'Artigny and me, seeing us first as he stepped forward. A moment he gazed, his voice falling; then anger conquered, and he strode forward, sword in hand.

"Mon Dieu! What is this? You here again, you bastard wood ranger? I had hoped I was rid of you, even at the cost of a wife. Well, I soon will be. Here, Durantaye, bring your men; we have a prisoner here to stretch rope. De Tonty, I command you in the name of France!"

The point of his sword was at D'Artigny's breast, but the younger man stood motionless, his lips smiling, his eyes on the other's face.

"Perchance, monsieur," he said quietly, "it might be best for you first to speak with this friend of mine."

Dinner Stories

The old sea captain, in brass buttons, sat smoking comfortably by his fireside, when Jack, his sailor son, burst in upon him.

"Weather too rough," explained the son, "so we've put in for a day."

"Too rough?" exclaimed Mr. Tar, with visions of his own days on the briny. "Why, sir, I was once sailing round the Cape when a storm came on, and it blew down the mainmast and the mizenmast was swept away, but we didn't even think of putting in."

"Well, you see," explained the son, "this storm was so bad it blew the anchors off the captain's buttons, took the paint off the ship's bows, and—"

"Stop!" cried the old man. "You do me credit, Jack—you do me credit!"

The following story comes from a reader who is employed on munitions. There had, it appears, been an explosion at a neighboring factory, and the manager, who was snatching a brief holiday at the time, hurried to investigate.

"How in the world did it happen?" he asked the foreman as he viewed the wreck. "Who was to blame?"

"Well, you see, sir," was the reply, "it was like this. Bill went into the mixing room, probably thinking of something else, and struck a match in mistake."

"Struck a match!" exclaimed the manager in amazement. "I should have thought it would have been the last thing on earth he'd do."

"It was, sir," was the rejoinder.

Too Sick To Work

Many Women in this Condition Regain Health by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Convincing Proof of This Fact

Ridgway, Penn. — "I suffered from female trouble with backache and pain in my side for over seven months so I could not do any of my work. I was treated by three different doctors and was getting discouraged when my sister-in-law told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her. I decided to try it, and it restored my health, so I now do all of my household work which is not light as I have a little boy three years old."

—Mrs. O. M. RHINES Ridgway, Penn.

Mrs. Lindsey Now Keeps House For Seven.

Tennille, Ga. — "I want to tell you how much I have been benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About eight years ago I got in such a low state of health I was unable to keep house for three in the family. I had dull, tired, dizzy feelings, cold feet and hands nearly all the time and could scarcely sleep at all. The doctor said I had a severe case of ulceration and without an operation I would always be an invalid, but I told him I wanted to wait awhile. Our druggist advised my husband to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has entirely cured me. Now I keep house for seven and work in the garden some, too. I am so thankful I got this medicine. I feel as though it saved my life and have recommended it to others and they have been benefited."

—Mrs. W. E. LINDSEY, R. R. 3, Tennille, Ga.

Uric Acid Poisoning!

The most eminent physicians recognize that uric acid stored up in the system is the cause of rheumatism, that this uric acid poison is present in the joints, muscles, or nerves. By experimenting and analysis at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., Dr. Pierce discovered a combination of native remedies that he called Anuric—which drives out the uric acid from the system, and in this way the pain, swelling and inflammation subside. If you are a sufferer from rheumatism, backache, pains where, or there, you can obtain Anuric at any drug store and get relief from the pains and ills brought about by uric acid; or send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial package Anuric—many times more potent than lithia, eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar. A short trial will convince you.

A PROMINENT PORTAGE WOMAN.

Portage, Wis.—"About six years ago I got to feeling quite poorly. I was weak, seemed that I had no energy or strength; in fact, I was all run down. My mother was taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription at the time, so I began taking it, and I was all right in about five weeks' time—was feeling fine. My strength came back and I have been in the best of health ever since. Favorite Prescription is a great medicine and I do heartily recommend it."—Mrs. Veltion, Fox, 502 Pleasant Street, W.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcoholic, narcotic, nor any harmful ingredient.

MILK PROPOSITION FULLY DISCUSSED

INTERESTING ARTICLE ON MILK SENT IN BY FOOTVILLE MAN.

TAKEN UP IN DETAIL

Oren S. Day Writes on Topic That is Worth Careful Consideration by All Citizens.

In the following article, a communication from Oren S. Day of Footville, Wis., is published. The writer takes up the milk situation in detail and states his own personal views on the subject. Just at the time it is important to get the conditions in the country and how the communication is as follows:

Since when and by what course of reasoning has it been learned that cows' milk used as a food for the human race is cheaper, more accessible or available at a lower price than that from 12 to 16 cents per quart?

Every dozen years a lot of politicians get together and decide that the time has come to twist the tariff tail and make the milk business pay.

Then they all get together and operate upon the tariff. Result—the people, labor, suffer and repent.

With respect to the present effort being made to fix the price of milk at the present time, would it not be a wise course on the part of the people, if possible, to get interested in the milk business and try to reverse the usual way of doing it, and do their suffering and repenting first, before too much operating takes place?

There seems to have been a line in the price of milk either a most thorough lack of real information as to conditions under which milk is produced at the present time or a line in difference coupled with total disregard.

The lost 40 per cent of a whole complete dairy farm to a dairy cow is available for the production of milk. The lost 40 per cent of real dairy cow's ration is available for the production of milk for the reason that the first 60 per cent of a cow's ration the cow retains and uses for the maintenance of her body and needs of her own dairy body, and under no other condition can a dairy cow produce and keep up the flow of milk.

The dairy cow, in her first little milk of 60 per cent of a good, liberal ration, balanced, as we say, to her bodily needs. Then she gives to her liberal feed and the milk she produces is produced by the other 40 per cent.

It matters not whom you are or whence you come, you just get 100 per cent of a liberal, balanced ration, and if she does not eat that even to the last ounce her owner and the world will feel it first for the cow takes her toll first.

The flow of milk for the winter's supply must of course come from the cows that are now fresh in milk. On the producing end of their business as a whole, or lot of how right through, there is not a more competent manager of business than the milk producer in the dairy business. They know how to feed, what to feed, when to feed, and also those little variations in occasionally changing the feed, how to substitute one food for another when so required by each individual cow, or to save in the cost of production, they know by long experience the relative values and cost of feed of different kinds, and maintaining a complete, liberal and balanced dairy ration.

The best thing they know and the very essential thing they all know best is that the milk they produce is the flow of milk from the dairy cow. They know they must not omit for one day or one hour to feed the cow right up to the full limit of her requirements. Even one ounce short of that limit 40 per cent less of milk will flow and production of milk.

It is neither the intention or desire of the writer to make a long, exhaustive communication on the subject. Many things must be omitted, but one condition should be considered. The dairy business is a very expensive one to enter and be successful, and it is also equally as expensive to leave. The best authorities, the best breeders themselves, inform us that starting with the best grades of purebred stock, the best that can be bought, a foundation stock, that it takes nine or ten successive generations of dairy cows, using the best producing sires obtainable, to produce dairy cows that can be depended upon to both produce and produce at fair percentage of dairy cattle of high dairy qualities.

It requires twenty-two long, weary years to breed nine successive generations of dairy cows, and the cost of feeding each calf up to the time when she comes into milk and profit at from twenty-four to thirty months. Here is the real thing of the dairyman throughout the whole country. Give to us, the people, the largest possible amount and flow of milk to help out the food supply.

Never have the people had a more promising or more productive selection of cows, fresh or soon to be fresh in milk and capable of doing their part.

Angry feed is in sight and available to feed each one of those cows a liberal per cent of required feed to produce and hold a full flow of milk. Never has there been a time when the dairyman has known fully the needs of the present time of every cow of milk possible, has made more careful provision and plans in his business with the determination to do his part, and produce like a bolt of lightning out of a perfectly blue sky, this Indiana, arbitrary, almost Kaiser-like thing seems to strike right down in the dairyman's pathway, and demand that the people the largest flow of milk even to the last ounce, but do this at your risk and absolutely regardless of cost to you, the dairyman.

The price of the milk that is to be produced is the price of the people who must need milk as a food can least afford it at a higher cost than at present.

Why, if that is the real object and result wished for, why not have the use of the milk means to drive the price of milk so high that no part of the people, even millionaires, can afford milk as a food?

Supposing, then, the dairyman should take the dollars of his savings the came by them by hard work and great self-denial to produce 100 pounds of milk. Now you say to him, "Keep that up, with real dairy cows, know that he must feed each and all 100 per cent of a liberal ration, 60 per cent to maintain the bodily needs of the cow, 40 per cent for the production of milk, first to produce a full flow of milk, secondly to maintain and keep up that flow of milk.

If the dairyman risks or uses three dollars of his savings to get the feed necessary to produce 100 pounds of milk and you tell him that he cannot have one cent of profit and but two of his three dollars back (remember he had three perfectly good dollars in his pocket to start with), what will he do? He must do "quit business before business quits him."

The ancient fiction extending back to where the memory of man reacheth not, to the contrary, that the farmer (dairyman must have no voice in fixing the prices of his productions—has not fully developed the keenness of the dairyman on the selling end of his business.

The present conditions under which milk must be produced absolutely compels the dairyman to either stand up firmly and throw off the shackles that have bound him or quit the business; and in doing the latter it is not a matter of question of selfish narrowness, of unphilosophy, of temper, or of really "do his bit" especially at the exact, present time for the good of all concerned.

It is a matter and question of just hard cold bread-and-butter business—and business self-preservation for the dairyman.

There is another angle to this problem. The dairyman and his family and all real lovers of their cows. It has taken them, as before stated, long weary, expensive years to produce them. They dislike to see them and plan every thirty and even fifty years to get them, then throw them away just as their life's work is through, their dairy cows most valuable.

The contentions, the thoughtful dairyman will say, is that when this price fixing and price tinkering has been tried out and ceased and the people have bled, suffered and repented, after the operating on prices, that they will want those same dairy cows back again to convert all the future abundant feed into milk, not only for the babies but all mankind.

The dairyman will say, the production of milk on account of prices being fixed at a much lower price than the average and great majority of dairymen can possibly produce milk and milk of a much higher quality than the average and unwilling to actually throw away or sell his dairy cows, what will he do?

Being unable to so feed his cows so as to maintain the full flow of milk, every quart of which is so much needed, he will reduce the full complete ration necessary to hold the full continued flow of 100 per cent down to about 60 per cent, just the feed that the cow needs in good condition. What will be the result? The result is identically the thought in mind when the question was asked, "Why, if the real purpose of price fixing is to reach and ability to buy, of the people who most need the milk as food, why make use of the only feed means to drive the price so high that no one can afford to buy it for food?"

For convenience let a dairy production of one hundred and fifty pounds of milk be the required amount of milk. We will assume that there are enough dairy cows fresh and soon to be fresh in milk to keep up that supply of milk for the winter, providing the dairyman, their owners and feeders, are not barred or hindered and compelled to withhold any part of a full ration necessary to build up and hold that flow and milk supply.

If it not plain to be understood that milk will be far cheaper and more easily obtained even if the most extravagant and highest prices demanded by the dairyman and milk producers are paid and the supply of milk is kept fully up to the required one hundred and fifty million pounds per day, then if the prices are fixed so low that the dairyman are actually compelled to either throw in their time, profits and save from 25 cents up to one dollar every time they produce 100 pounds of milk in order to keep up the flow of milk, and they are finally compelled to quit producing milk but decide to keep the cows by feeding them only the 60 per cent required to maintain the cows.

This is a position the dairyman have not entered willingly but have been driven smack up against a solid stone wall.

What feed is shut off and away from these faithful servants the dairy cows, the supply of milk must tumble and fall down, down from millions to thousands of quarts per day, then finally to only hundreds of quarts each day.

When that happens who will buy? How about the people most needing milk as a food—will it be more accessible and cheaper when the flow and supply of milk in the land has fallen to hundreds of millions of quarts each day?

Prices are so fixed as to leave it doubtful in the minds of the dairyman as to whether any profits may be had in the production of milk, it is bound to rest and cut off the full milk flow needed.

Mr. Business man, are you interested either directly or otherwise in the production of milk and also to the people who most need it? There be the who most need the milk possible throughout the land? You know that during the past three years almost all mined metals have become very valuable and high in price. The production of milk, the mines in the United States and Alaska must in the aggregate foot up a nice little amount of wealth in a year. Not a large percentage of the area of Wisconsin is occupied by intensive, exclusive dairy farmers, yet Wisconsin's production of dairy products alone, in one year, exceeds in money value the value of the production of all the mines of the United States and Alaska combined.

If you will take a sheet of paper and add up the total day rolls of all the milk concerns handling milk and you will find only a few cents locally, for only thirty days, and if you are not surprised it is for the reason that you have so done already or have been informed by those who have been in the business of milk to have his share of all money locally received for milk.

Every one is or ought to be interested in the great mass of people in the largest supply of milk possible at a price only just above the lowest cost of production.

Just now is the fitting, opportune time to get your voices and put your shoulders to the wheel to the end and purpose of serving those who most need milk, before, not after, too much price tinkering has been done.

Mr. Business man, the business part of this question will reach you, too, but you know far better than others that there are thousands of families who need that shall be a very full and large supply of milk at even a price of a parallel with other foods of equal food value, and that in many of these thousands of families there are babes from one month to two years of age that must have cow's milk and plenty of it or starve. What you not put up your voice to help ditch any plan or project that will surely lessen the milk supply?

It is this is merely a matter of law, it is a mighty bad, poor law either in its demands or enforcement that will contribute directly to the death of thousands of babes and children. Is it not? If one of you has a nice little fee down in a very comfortable place in your jeans pocket, and though you might need that little fee and like to keep it, just merely to the price of milk too low, will you not return that fee and come over to the other side, even if you have to run your furnace or coal stove one-half speed ahead for a few weeks this winter? In part payment for your sacrifice the thought that you had perked up and brought joy in thousands of homes in this land in place of tears of sorrow, ought to comfort you.

More than to attempt to throw a little hot oil upon the position of the milk producers, and the farmer dairyman and to show that they are being acted upon instead of the reverse, no attempt has been made in the above writing to show to the people that the farmer never had a real voice in making their selling prices, the old farmers and dairyman as well have long been used to dig in and out of just such troubles as this. The farmer, dairyman ought and in due time will have absolute justice and their rights in these matters of business the same as men in other lines of business.

One last word for the mothers in the thousands of homes that have even the very commonest necessities of life and even that little in the meat, "steak," least amounts for food, food, food, and they are being forced by them. Hard working, over-burdened fathers are also to be considered.

Whatever else falls to interest or touch any reader, please do not allow the dairyman to be the lips of thousands of already overworked, over-burdened mothers in this land. This last cup of deep, bitter sorrow, that in addition to all their hard work, they must hold their babes in their arms day by day and hour by hour and see them starve and die, only to prove that milk is not cheaper or more accessible.

Those who most need it for food at one dollar a quart than at fifteen cents.

That milk cannot be cheaper when the normal adequate supply of milk has been reduced down to hundreds of quarts each day that should have been held up into the millions and hundreds of millions of milk each day.

OREN S. DAY, Footville, Wis.

CHICAGO ELECTION IS LOYALTY PLEDGE

Election results of Tuesday in Chicago registered the loyalty of that city to the United States when the future of the Cook county was decided. The election was held at 100,000. The Socialists were defeated by a margin of three to one.

The incomplete figures show that the total vote in Cook county was about 240,000 of which about 15,000 ballots were cast in the country towns. In quarters where the German-American vote was strong the Socialists claimed large support. In some of these places they got a heavy poll, but not one that came up to their pre-election forecasts that they would sweep the city and the county.

The independent ticket was left at the post. The results show that it polled an almost negligible vote.

The raising of the war issue brought the electors out to the polls in unusual force for a municipal election. Ordinarily a bench election draws a small vote as in last year's election when Chicago polled but 171,000 votes.

The election was the most orderly in the history of the election commissioners' office. No violence or friction was present and no one was arrested while near the polls.

A Fib. The pupils in an Alabama school were asked to construct a sentence containing the word "unphibious." As quick as a flash a boy gave out the following: "Most fish stories are fibulous."
